InclusiGardens: Digital and Sustainable Pathways to Social Inclusion through Urban Gardening is an Erasmus+ Small-Scale Partnership project in the field of adult education, bringing together three organisations: Društvo za permakulturo Slovenije (Slovenia), Pučko otvoreno učilište Čakovec (Croatia), and eVRgreen Studio (the Netherlands).

Project's main goal is to empower urban dwellers, particularly those who are marginalised or vulnerable, by offering accessible, hands-on resources for sustainable urban micro-gardening. InclusiGardens focuses on fostering social inclusion, promoting zero-waste principles, and supporting community engagement through open educational materials and collaborative learning. Newsletters like this one serve to share the latest developments, highlight practical project outcomes (like the e-Toolkit on how to create your own urban micro-garden), and provide updates on upcoming activities and resources available to the wider public.

TPM in SLOVENIA

The InclusiGardens partners from Slovenia, Croatia and the Netherlands recently concluded a productive transnational partner meeting in Slovenia. Hosted by Društvo za permakulturo Slovenije, the meeting was a valuable opportunity for intensive collaboration and the exchange of insights and experiences. We focused on coordinating the initial creation stages of the gamification resources, and on planning for the next phase of the project. These discussions were instrumental in preparing for the development of our upcoming gamification strategies, ensuring they will be engaging and effective for all adult learners.

INCLUSIGARDENS E-TOOLKIT

Micro urban gardens, major green impact!

e-Toolkit

We are thrilled to announce the launch of the InclusiGardens modular e-Toolkit on urban micro-gardening. This comprehensive resource features learning modules designed to guide you through every step of creating your own sustainable urban garden, from understanding permaculture design to practical tips for companion planting and creating organic fertilisers. Developed to empower vulnerable and marginalised groups, the e-Toolkit provides the knowledge and skills needed for greater self-sufficiency. We invite you to explore this free and open resource and begin your gardening journey today!
